RESEARCH AND CAPACITY BUILDING ON COLLABORATIVE GOVERNANCE
Professor Peter Boothroyd is a Professor Emeritus at the University of British Columbia (UBC). He is a development planner whose work focuses on understanding and enhancing the potential of community-based planning to contribute to sustainability and equity. Prior to joining the UBC, he was a consultant on urban policy, social planning, impact assessment, and community development. In the last 15 years, he has led UBC projects funded by the Canadian International Development Agency to build planning capacity in Thailand, Vietnam and Brazil. Through these experiences, he has become increasingly interested in the development role of universities. He co-edited with Leonora Angeles the special issue of the Canadian Journal of Development Studies on Canadian universities and international development in 2003.

Dr. Ma. Jesusa M. Marco is the Associate Vice-Chancellor for Research and Learning at De La Salle University-Manila where she previously served as Dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Director of the Social Development Research Center. She has been a coordinator or consultant in various research projects on child and family welfare, child labor, street children, orphanage foster care, displaced populations, old age protection, urban water supply, and collaborative approaches to dengue control. These were conducted with the support of donor agencies such as the Asian Development Bank, Consuelo Zobel Aliger Foundation, Danish Red Cross, International Federation of Catholic Universities, International Labor Organization, and World Bank. She earned her Ph.D. in Sociology from the Loyola University of Chicago.

Dr. Ralph S. Brower is an Associate Professor at the Askew School of Public Administration and Director of the Center for Civic and Nonprofit Leadership at Florida State University. His research deals with voluntary organizations, organizational development, information technology diffusion, emergency management, and public affairs education. His numerous works have appeared in prestigious journals such as Administration and Society, Public Performance and Management Review, American Review of Public Administration, International Journal of Public Administration, Public Administration Review, Public Administration Quarterly, Journal of Public Affairs Education, and Journal of Public Budgeting, Accounting and Financial Management. He was based in the Philippines in 2006-2007 as a Fulbright Senior Fellow. He finished his Ph.D. in Public Administration from the State University of New York, Albany.

Dr. Leonora C. Angeles is an Associate Professor at the School of Community and Regional Planning and the Women’s and Gender Studies Undergraduate Program at the University of British Columbia. She is the Graduate Program Advisor of the Centre for Women’s and Gender Studies and also a faculty research associate at the UBC Centre for Human Settlements where she has been involved in a number of applied research and capacity-building research projects in Brazil, Vietnam, and other Southeast Asian countries. Her continuing research and interests are on community and international development studies and social policy, participatory planning and governance, participatory action research, and the politics of transnational feminist networks, women’s movements, and agrarian issues. She co-edited with Penny Gurstein the volume on Learning Civil Societies: Shifting Contexts for Democratic Planning and Governance published by the University of Toronto Press in 2007. She got her Ph.D. in Political Science from Queens University.

Dr. Francisco Magno is a Visiting Scholar at the Institute for Energy Systems, Economics and Sustainability at Florida State University. He is the Founding Director of the La Salle Institute of Governance and was a former Director of the Social Development Research Center. He has been a Visiting Professor at Waseda University and Hiroshima University, Visiting Scholar at the University of Reading, and Lecturer at the South-South Training Institute in Senegal. His articles on environment and governance have been published in Pacific Affairs, Security Dialogue, Environmental History, Mountain Research and Development, Peace Review, Journal of International Development and Cooperation, Asia-Pacific Perspectives, Philippine Political Science Journal, Philippine Journal of Public Administration, and Philippine Studies. He received an Outstanding Young Scientist award from the National Academy of Science and Technology of the Philippines in 2000. He earned his Ph.D. in Political Science at the University of Hawaii.

Ronald D. Holmes is the President of Pulse Asia, Incorporated which conducts nationwide surveys on electoral preferences and public perceptions concerning socio-economic, cultural, and political issues. He is also the Director for Institutional Research and Planning under the Office of the President and Chancellor of De La Salle University-Manila. His previous appointments include being Executive Vice-President of the College of Saint Benilde, Director of De La Salle Santiago Zobel, Vice-Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, and Chair of the Political Science Department. Last year, he was elected to serve a third term as President of the Philippine Political Science Association having served in the same position in 2001-2003 and 2005-2007. He was also the Chair of the Board of Trustees of the Philippine Social Science Council in 2002-2003. He has been part of the Commission on Higher Education Technical Panel in Political Science for the past several years either as chair or member.

Dr. Madeleine A. Sta. Maria is an Associate Professor at the Psychology Department and Director of the University Research Coordination Office of De La Salle University - Manila. She holds the PAGCOR Chair in Human Development. A lifetime member of the Pambansang Samahan sa Sikolohiyang Filipino, Dr. Sta. Maria obtained her undergraduate and graduate degrees at the University of the Philippines, and her doctorate in Psychology from the University of Cologne in Germany. She is conducting research on “The Youth as Social Agents: The EDSA 2 Experience.” She is also pursuing a comparative study on India, Indonesia, the Philippines, and South Africa,” with the support of the Center for Advanced Studies in the Behavioral Sciences, Stanford University.
LETTER OF INVITATION

RE: Invitation to the International Training Course on Research and Capacity Building on Collaborative Governance

Dear Sir/Madame,

I am pleased to inform you that the La Salle Institute of Governance, in partnership with the University of British Columbia’s Centre for Human Settlements through the UBC-UN Habitat Exchange, and with the support from the DLSU-Commission on Higher Education (CHED) Zonal Research Center, is organizing an international training course called Research and Capacity Building on Collaborative Governance. This would be held on August 5, 2010, Thursday, 8.00 a.m. to 5.00 p.m., at De La Salle University-Manila.

The course would enable the participants to achieve the following: (1) to understand the role of the university in delivering capacity building programs to various clients; (2) to determine how to establish research teams; (3) to see the need to integrate teaching, research and community service learning programs; (4) to learn how to conduct research with non-profit organizations; (5) to appreciate the use of surveys in doing research and governance assessments; and (6) to realize the challenges in developing collaborative governance research partnerships.

Lectures would be delivered by resource speakers from the University of British Columbia (Canada), Florida State University (United States), and De La Salle University - Manila. Collaboration exercises and action planning activities to be facilitated through the use of interactive learning tools would be conducted. There would also be a sharing session on how to apply for research assistance and other grant opportunities from CHED. Training certificates will be awarded at the end of the program.

In this regard, I would like to invite you to participate and send your research directors and top faculty members to join this innovative international program. Since slots are limited, please accomplish the attached registration form at your earliest convenience.
